How to record

1. Record one character at a time: each has its own section, with the voice described at the top.
2. Read the line exactly as written. Words in CAPITALS are stressed; "..." is a pause; "—" means the line is cut off mid-word.
3. Stay inside the "max" length. Short and punchy beats slow and complete.
4. Record dry and close: no reverb, no effects, no music. The robot processing is added afterwards.
5. Record 3 takes of every line, and number them 1, 2, 3 in the file name (the best one first, if you can tell).
6. Format: OGG (Vorbis), mono, 48 kHz, highest quality setting (q 8 or more). No leading silence; half a second of room tone after each take is fine.
7. Save every take under the exact file name shown on its card, in the folder shown. The name is how the game finds it.
8. Tick the box on a card once its takes are saved.

Atlas

Flux's field AI

Voice: Gender-neutral to slightly low; calm, precise, warm underneath. A mission-control navigator who is also your friend. Dry humour by understatement. Never shouts: at critical moments it gets tighter and faster, not louder.

atlas_warn_gelFirst.ogg
atlas_warn_gel.ogg
atlas_warn_criticalFirst.ogg
atlas_warn_critical.ogg
atlas_warn_noGel.ogg

...I was written from its first draft.
It's building a body. Out of our valley.

Flux... something's in the—
...You kept it out. Thank you.
The signal's lost its power station.
Every part for its body goes through here.
No more parts reach the Fortress.

Shield's down. The Fortress is open.
A foundry. It's casting claws.
The foundry's cold. No more claws.
Ore for its armor. Dug right here.
The mine's quiet. No more ore.
Barges now. Vex found another way.
Locks shut. The barges stay home.
Lights out. Except Vex's face.
Lights on. Vex lost its screens.
Drones. Its last supply line.
Every line's cut. Vex is alone.

Half-built. You did that.
That's Vex. The real one.
Fire!
Ice!
Volt!
Wind!
Scrap!
Because they're free.
Lightning! Move when the ring lights up!
The roof's giving way!
Down to the Core! Don't fall in!
Vex is pressing something... Brace yourself!
Its arms first! The cannon and the lance!
Now the feet! Block the shockwaves!
It's down low. The head is in reach!
The core is open! Finish it!
Prism Cannon! Shield up!
Power's failing! Cross when the lights come back.
Ore cart's rolling! I steer, you shoot the moles.
Steep drop! Hold on tight!
Last stop. Out you hop!

The Spire is empty. I could run this city now. I won't. It's theirs.

Core Master ahead.
Plating's cracking. Use a gel.
Gel.
Critical! Back off!
Critical!
No gel left. Play it safe.

atlas_hint_gale_shuttle.ogg	Shuttles. Step on when it docks, off at the other end.
atlas_hint_gale_wind.ogg	Wait for the gust to die, then move. Or hide behind a pillar.
atlas_hint_gale_bob.ogg	Bobbing platforms. Hop on at the bottom, ride it up.
atlas_secret_lights.ogg	That panel shows a pattern. The lamps on the wall don't. Yet.
atlas_secret_color.ogg	That frame has a favourite colour. Only its lamps should shine.
atlas_secret_cycle.ogg	Every hit changes a lamp's mind. The panel knows what it wants.
atlas_secret_solved.ogg	Well, well. Someone likes puzzles.

Dr. Vex

The showman doctor, the villain

Voice: Big, theatrical, pompous: a game-show host crossed with a vain surgeon. Relishes the words and stretches the big ones ("Maaag-nificent"). Over the top but never scary: the audience is all ages.

Avoid: Imitating any specific film villain's voice or catchphrases: the archetype, not an impression.

Welcome back, Flux! Look at the valley.
The old crane is sorting scrap again.
You copied Scrap Burst. It sprays three ways.
Next stop: Blaze Refinery. Just a little tougher.
Blaze Master is forging armor for Vex's machines.
Block its fireballs. Slide past the fire waves.
The chimneys burn clean again. Nice work!
You've got Flame Wave now. Fire melts ice!
Cryo Plant is next. The machines hit harder there.
Frost Master keeps all the coolant. The city's overheating.
Block its ice shots, then fire back!
Coolant's flowing home. The city can cool down.
Ice Lance is yours. Ice beats lightning!
Next: Volt Tower, downtown. A real step up.
Volt Master pours our power into the Red Signal.
It teleports a lot. Shoot down its orbs.
Vex's face keeps flickering now. Did you see?
Thunder Arc is yours. Lightning beats wind!
Next: Sky Docks, way up high. Tough machines.
Gale Master runs Vex's airships, day and night.
Block the feathers. Parry when it dives!
The airships turned around. Clear skies again!
Gale Guard is yours. Its leaves block shots.
Now the city's edge: Polarity Works. Much tougher.
Magnet Master took the tram rails for Vex's freight.
It pulls you in. Block the clamp!
The trams are rolling again. Ding ding!
Magnet Pull cracks shields. Perfect for the next Master.
Next: Deep Mine, deep underground. Seriously strong machines.
Drill Master trapped the worker-bots down the shaft.
It digs under you. Step off the mark!
The worker-bots are back up in daylight.
Drill Bomb goes boom. Save some for the boss!
Next: Tidewater Locks, down by the water. Very tough.
Tide Master is flooding the canals for Vex's barges.
Slide under its waves. Pop the bubbles!

Clean water's flowing into the valley again.
Bubble Lance rolls through crowds. The boss hates bubbles!
Next: Blackout Boulevard, the dark rooftops. Really dangerous.
Neon Master switched off every window downtown.
Its blade flies out and back. Dodge twice!
Downtown's glowing pink tonight. So pretty!
Neon Blade cuts twice. The next Master fears it!
Next: Rotor Run, the sky airfield. Almost the toughest.
Rotor Master fills the sky with cargo drones.
It blows you back. Slide under the gusts!
The drones deliver to the worker-bots now.
Drone Swarm is yours. Three drones find their targets.
Last stop: Vex Fortress. The toughest place there is.
Dr. Vex Mk-I can't hide behind a shield now.
It borrows the Masters' attacks. Pack Repair Gel!
Gear up, then go! I'll mind the lab.
